Statistics

At the close of the fiscal year, the Oriental Institute had 2,306 members. Between July 1, 2005 and June 30, 2006, 191 new members joined the Institute and we had a nearly 35% increase in total membership revenue.

Publications

The Membership Office — with the assistance and expertise of the Publications Office — continued publishing News & Notes on a quarterly basis. The fall 2005 issue featured a lead article by Research Associate Abbas Alizadeh, “New Challenges and Perspectives in Iran.” The winter 2006 issue highlighted the opening of the Robert F. Picken Family Nubia Gallery and the Doris and Marshall Holleb Family Gallery for Special Exhibits, with articles by Geoff Emberling, Museum Director and John A. Larson, Museum Archivist. The spring issue focused on the Institute’s recent excavation season at Hamoukar, Syria, directed by Research Associate Clemens D. Reichel. Tutankhamun dominated the summer 2006 issue, with articles by Emily Teeter and Geoff Emberling (“Tutankhamun in Chicago,” about the Institute’s own special exhibits related to Tut) and longtime volunteer and Breasted Medallion recipient Peggy Grant (“James Henry Breasted and the Tomb of Tutankhamun,” detailing Breasted’s involvement with the discovery of Tut’s tomb). This issue also saw a complete redesign of the News & Notes format, moving to a glossier, magazine-style layout with a bolder cover.

Events

Gallery Openings

The Membership Office was involved with several of the opening events for the Picken Family Nubia Gallery and the Holleb Family Special Exhibits Gallery.

The Director’s Dinner honored donors to the galleries and the museum staff who created the exhibits (from conception to conservation to installation). Held at the Institute on February 20, the event offered guests the first look at the Picken Nubia Gallery and Lost Nubia, the first exhibit in the Holleb Special Exhibits Gallery featuring photographs from James Henry Breasted’s expeditions to Sudan in 1905–1907. David O’Connor of the Institute of Fine Arts at New York University delivered the keynote address on “Egypt, Nubia, and the Nile in Antiquity.” Dinner followed in the Edgar and Deborah Jannotta Mesopotamian Gallery.

On February 23, nearly 200 guests attended the Members’ Preview of the two galleries before they opened to the public the following weekend. For the first time, we almost ran out of food!

Keeping to a vigorous special exhibits schedule, the museum followed up Lost Nubia with another photography exhibit, Wonderful Things! Photographs of the Tomb of Tutankhamun, which opened on May 26 to coincide with the opening of Tutankhamun and the Golden Age of the Pharaohs at The Field Museum. The Members’ Preview was held on May 24, featuring remarks by Geoff Emberling and Emily Teeter.

Lectures

The Members' Lecture Series flourished in 2005/2006. We continued our partnership with the Chicago chapter of the Archaeological Institute of America (AIA), enabling us to bring even more diverse speakers to the Institute. This led to a very full calendar — in one case, two lectures in two days! — but each talk presented a different, equally fascinating topic that was well received by members of both organizations. We hope to continue this fruitful relationship for years to come.

On October 5, the Oriental Institute's own Scott Branting gave the first lecture for the academic year, "Urban Dynamics in an Iron Age Metropolis: Excavations at Kerkenes Dağ."

On October 19, Cynthia Miller of the University of Wisconsin-Madison — and also an alum of the Department of Near Eastern Languages and Civilizations and Linguistics at the University of Chicago — gave a lecture "Languages without Speakers: Reconstructing Ancient Near Eastern Languages from Epigraphic Fragments."

November 4 brought Irene Winter of Harvard University to the Oriental Institute to give the inaugural Helene J. Kantor Memorial Lecture. Initiated by the AIA, this lectureship honors the life and work of Prof. Kantor, a pioneering figure in ancient Near Eastern scholarship. Dr. Winter spoke on "An Ancient Sky Map? Astral Imagery on Akkadian Cylinder Seals."

On November 16, Frantz Grenet of the Sorbonne, Paris, and Director of the French-Uzbek Archaeological Mission gave a lecture on "Rediscovering Ancient Samarkand: The Latest Results from the French-Uzbek Archaeological Mission."

Shortly after returning from the field, Oriental Institute Research Associate Clemens Reichel updated our members on his research with "Urbanism and Warfare in Northeastern Syria During the Fourth Millennium B.C.: The 2005 Hamoukar Excavations."

In a talk co-sponsored with the AIA, Simon James of the University of Leicester presented "Desert Fortress: Life and Violent Death at Roman Dura-Europos, Syria" on March 29.

The very next day, Michael Roaf of Munich University gave a lecture on "Art and Empire in the Achaemenid Period."

On April 18, Hermann Parzinger, president of the German Archaeological Institute, spoke on "Monumental Kurgans in the Siberian Steppe: The Scythian Elite Burial from Arzhan in Tuva." This talk was also co-sponsored by the AIA.

Timothy Matney of the University of Akron spoke about "Recent Excavations on the Ancient Assyrian Frontier: The Ziyaret Tepe Archaeological Project, 1997–2005" on April 26.

On May 17, Thomas E. Levy of the University of California-San Diego gave a talk on "New Light on the Rise of the Biblical Kingdom of Edom: Recent Excavations in Southern Jordan."

And finally, on May 26, Carol Andrews of the University of London gave the last lecture of the academic year on "The Ancient Egyptian Sense of Humor." This talk was co-sponsored with the Chicago chapter of the American Research Center in Egypt.

Other Events

An Associate Members' Event was held on December 4. Patrick E. McGovern of the University of Pennsylvania Museum gave a lecture on "Wine and the Vine: The Archaeological and Chemical Hunt for the Origins of Viniculture." After the talk, La Petite Folie — a French restaurant in Hyde Park — presented a wine tasting and food pairing.

The James Henry Breasted Society met twice this academic year. On December 12, "To Aswan and Back: A Behind-the-Scenes Look at the Oriental Institute and Nubia" gave members an in-depth look at the Institute's involvement — past and present — in preserving the fascinating civilization of Nubia, including the rare opportunity to view selections from our Nubian textile collection, many of which are too large and fragile to go on display. Program presenters were Geoff Emberling, Museum Director; Raymond D. Tindel, Registrar; Helen McDonald, Assistant Registrar; Laura D'Alessandro, Head of Conservation; and Alison Whyte, Assistant Conservator. Dinner was held at the Quadrangle Club.

On June 1, Breasted Society members toured the Tutankhamun and the Golden Age of the Pharaohs exhibition at The Field Museum. This semi-private viewing was made possible by Field Museum president and Breasted Society member John McCarter. A private reception was held in the Lions of Tsavo gallery, where salivating buffalos and warhogs looked on as Emily Teeter gave remarks about Tutankhamun's history in Chicago and with the Oriental Institute.

Travel Program

The Oriental Institute sponsored two sold-out travel programs this academic year: a weekend trip to San Francisco to view the Hatshepsut: From Queen to Pharaoh exhibition at the new deYoung Museum in January 2006; and a nearly four-week long study expedition to Egypt and Libya in March/April 2006.

Peter Dorman, Professor of Egyptology at the Oriental Institute and a contributor to the Hatshepsut exhibition catalog, led the tour to San Francisco. In addition to the deYoung Museum, the group visited the Hearst Museum of Anthropology at the University of California-Berkeley where we were fortunate enough to bump into one of the curators of the exhibit, who just happened to be in the museum that day.

On March 9, eighteen travelers departed for a tour of "Ancient Egypt & Libya." Escorted by Robert Ritner, Professor of Egyptology at the Oriental Institute, the focus of the tour was to trace the linked history and cultures of these civilizations. After several diplomatic roadblocks that nearly led to cancellation, we were able to secure our Libyan visas at the very last minute and be one of the few American groups granted entry to the country. The tour spent about a week in Egypt, visiting sites such as Abusir, Dashur, Bubastis, Tanis, Abu Menas, and El Alamein and the cities of Cairo, Alexandria, and Mersa Metrouh. After a long but (thankfully) uneventful border crossing, the group entered eastern Libya, which is home to some of the best-preserved ancient Greek and Roman cities in the world (including some finely detailed mosaics). We visited the site of Ptolemais (present day Tolmeita), where the Oriental Institute excavated in the 1950s under the direction of former Institute director Carl H. Kraeling. The tour also featured a weeklong extension into the Libyan Sahara to explore ancient rock art dating to around 10,000 B.C.

The next year promises to be an exciting one for travel, with several tours to new and old destinations alike:
