RICHARD H. BEAL spent most of his time preparing a new Hittite Dictionary fascicle for press and writing first drafts of words for future fascicles of the dictionary. In his off hours he has been preparing a revised version of his University of Chicago dissertation, The Organization of the Hittite Military, for publication in the series Texte der Hethiter. This year has seen the appearance of articles on "The GIŠTUKUL Institution in Hittite Anatolia" (a study of a system of giving government employees land to work rather than a salary) in the journal Altorientalische Forschungen and an article on the Hittite word kulē - (meaning something like "idle") in the journal Orientalia.

Beal and his wife, JoAnn Scurlock, took a one month photographic trip to North Yemen in 1988 and to Algeria in 1989.
